General Information and Planning

Selection Ideas

Generally hotels are selected near the center of the city or near the sights you wish to see. Realize that this is NOT your last trip to France and therefore do not attempt to see all of the sights in one trip. As a general practice, we have decided to spend the last night in France at the Paris CDG airport. Although these tend to be more expensive hotels, being close to the airport eliminates any worries about traffic on your day of departure. Being able to walk to the gate or catch a short shuttle ride makes for less pressure and a much easier last day in France. Being at or near the airport makes for a more relaxing last night to pack and recompress from the rush or stress of travel. As a side note, we also usually use frequent traveler points to fund that last night.

Star Ratings

The French government has very strict rules about the Star Ratings so you can be assured that the ratings are valid. The star rating is very sterile and only measures space and amenities, it does not measure friendliness and ambiance. Remember also that the city is the destination and NOT the hotel. Your hotel needs to be clean and convenient to transportation; with good sound control and a helpful staff. If you do not like the “looks” of your room, talk to the front desk and they will likely find another room more to your liking. The French are a proud and friendly people but do not act like the typical “ugly American” and demand whatever you want. Say yes and thank you and request rather than demand and you will find the French may be nicer than Americans (especially New Yorkers). ☺

- ★ One Star Economy
No elevator
Possible English spoken on front desk (not required)

Typically smaller hotels managed by the proprietor. The hotel is often 2 - 4 stories high and usually has a more personal atmosphere. It's usually located near affordable attractions, major intersections and convenient to public transportation. Furnishings and facilities are clean but basic. Most will not have a restaurant on site but are usually within walking distance to some good low-priced dining. Public access, past certain hours, may be restricted.

- ★★ Two Star Moderate
Elevator (if more than 5 floors)
Possible English speaker on front desk (not required)
Breakfast available

Usually denotes independent and name brand hotel chains with a reputation for offering consistent quality amenities. The hotel is usually small to medium-sized and conveniently located to moderately priced attractions. The facilities typically include telephones and TV's in the bedroom. Some hotels offer limited restaurant service; however, room service and bellhop service is usually not provided

- ★★★ Three Star First Class
Elevator (if more than 4 floors)
English speaker on front desk
Breakfast and Room service available

Typically these hotels offer more spacious accommodations that include well appointed rooms and decorated lobbies. Bellhop service is usually not available. They are often located near major expressways or business areas, convenient to shopping and moderate to high priced attractions. The hotels usually feature medium-sized restaurants that typically offer service breakfast through dinner. Room service availability may vary. Valet parking, fitness centers and pools are often provided.

★★★★ Four Star Superior
Elevator
English speaker on front desk
Full dining facilities available

Mostly large, formal hotels with smart reception areas, front desk service and bellhop service. The hotels are most often located near other hotels of the same caliber and are usually found near shopping, dining and other major attractions. The level of service is well above average and the rooms are well lit and well furnished. Restaurant dining is usually available and may include more than one choice. Some properties will offer continental breakfast and/or happy hour delicacies. Room service is usually available during most hours. Valet parking and/or garage service is also usually available. Concierge services, fitness centers and one or more pools are often provided.

★★★★★ Five Star Deluxe
Elevator
English speaker on front desk
Full dining facilities available

These are hotels that offer only the highest level of accommodations and services. The properties offer a high degree of personal service. Although most five star hotels are large properties, sometimes the small independent (non-chain) property offers an elegant intimacy that can not be achieved in the larger setting. The hotel locations can vary from the very exclusive locations of a suburban area, to the heart of downtown. The hotel lobbies are sumptuous, the rooms complete with stylish furnishing and quality linens. The amenities often include: VCR's, CD stereos, garden tubs or Jacuzzis, in-room video library, heated pools and more. The hotels feature up to three restaurants all with exquisite menus. Room service is usually available 24 hours a day. Fitness Centers and valet and/or garage parking are typically available. A concierge is also available to assist you.

Hotel Chains

Standard U.S. hotel chains exist in France as well as groups of French and/or European chains. The higher priced chains such as Hilton, Sheraton (Starwood) and Holiday Inn tend to be four star hotels in France while the Best Western is usually a three star. Websites for these chains can book rooms in France also.

Airport Transportation

Air France Bus

The Air France Bus is the best way to get into Paris from CDG.

Taxis and limos are available at the CDG airport as in all other airports. The best way to get into downtown Paris is the Air France Bus. The Air France Bus is an express shuttle which runs between Roissy/CDG and the Arc de Triomphe (Place de l'Etoile, 17^e arrondissement) or the nearby Porte Maillot. Hours of operation are 5:45 a.m. to 11:00 p.m., with departures every 15 minutes, and travel time is about 45 minutes. A one-way ticket costs €12 for adults, €6 for children (ages 2-11); round-trip tickets are €18. Groups of four or more enjoy a 15% discount. You can catch the bus at the following airport locations:

Aérogare/Terminal 1: exit door #34 on the arrivals level

Aérogare/Terminal 2: exit doors #A6, B6, C5, D6 on the arrivals level

Aérogare/Terminal 2F: exit door 7 on the arrivals level

Another express bus runs from Roissy/CDG to the Gare de Lyon (20 boulevard Diderot, Paris 12^e) and the Gare Montparnasse (rue du Commandant R. Mouchotte, Paris 14^e). Hours of operation are 7:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., with departures every 30 minutes, and travel time is about 50 minutes. A one-way ticket costs €12 for adults, €6 for children (ages 2-11); round-trip tickets are €18. Groups enjoy a 15% discount. You can catch the bus at the following airport locations:

Aérogare/Terminal 1: exit door #34 on the arrivals level

Aérogare/Terminal 2F: exit doors #B2, C2, on the arrivals level

Taxi

Traditional Taxi service is usually available from CDG to downtown. Expect a fare of €60.

Shared Vans

Shared van rides can be arranged with your hotel for airport return or on-line prior to arriving.

Metro (The Subway)

The Metro (subway) is the best way to get around Paris.

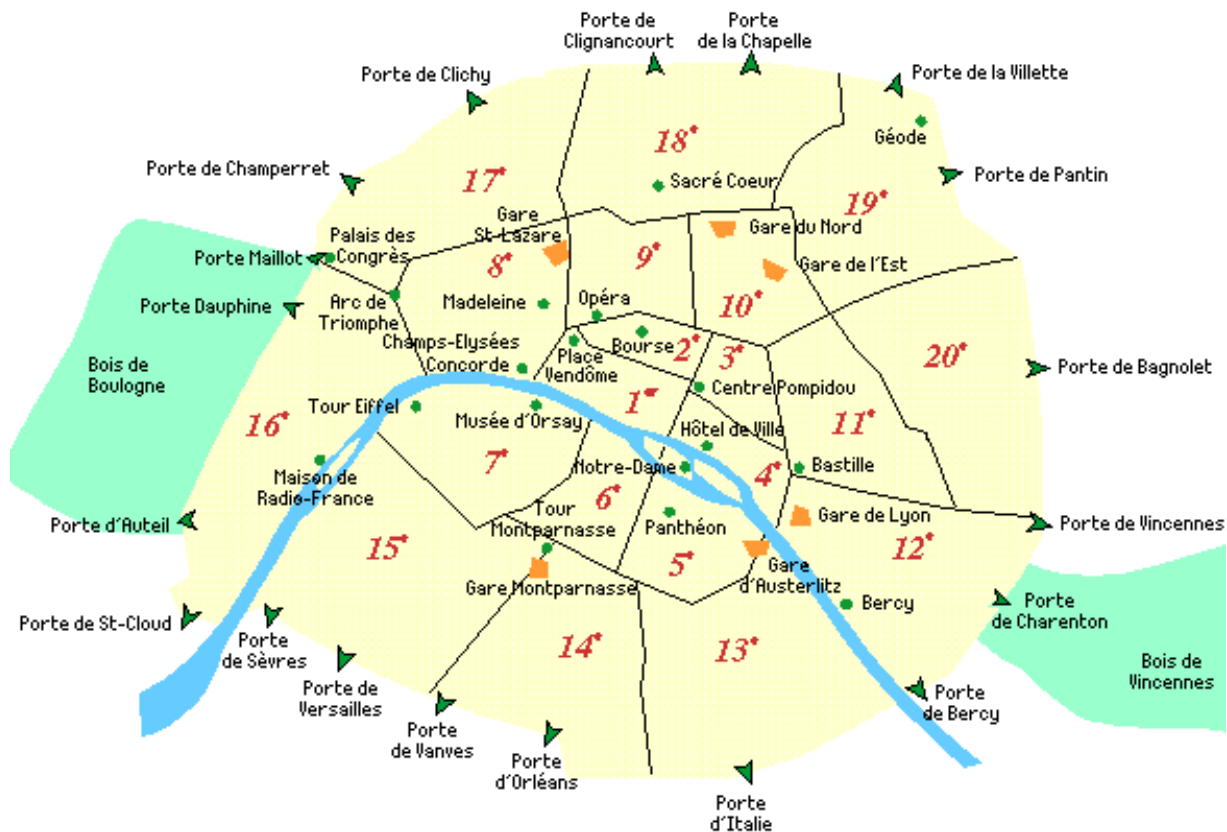

The RER offers rail service to some destinations and the bus service is excellent also. The Metro, however, is more fun, easier and cheaper. You can buy a “carnet” of ten tickets for a reduced price. Keep your ticket after passing through the ticket gate, you may need it later.

Hotels – Paris

Paris Arrondissements (neighborhoods)

Paris is divided into 20 different neighborhoods called arrondissements. Arrondissements are named according to their number. For example, you might live in the 5th arrondissement, which would be written as 5ème (or 5e) in French. If you know the postal code of any address in Paris, you can easily identify which arrondissement it is located in because Parisian postal codes take the form of - 75XXX - with the last two digits being equal to the arrondissement (e.g. 75008 is the postal code for the 8th arrondissement). Sights worth visiting are noted in bold and red below.

1st Arrondissement

The geographical center of Paris. Landmarks : The Louvre, Le Palais Royal, the Tuileries Gardens, opposite the Pyramid, Place Vendôme, the rue Saint-Honoré. Les Halles is named for the large central wholesale marketplace, which was demolished in 1971, to be replaced with an underground modern shopping precinct, the Forum des Halles. It is notable in that the open air center area is below street level, and contains sculpture, fountains, and mosaics. Beneath is the underground station Châtelet-Les-Halles, central hub of Paris's express metro system, the RER.

2nd Arrondissement

A great place to sample typical Parisian atmosphere: little passageways and arcades full of shops and small cafés. The Paris Stock Market (the Bourse) is also here. Also west from Rue de Richelieu is the "theatre district" with over a dozen theatres including L'Opera Garnier. The pedestrian area of Montorgueil offers restaurants, bars, shops for all kind of budgets.

3rd Arrondissement

Along with the 4th District this neighborhood makes up the Marais, one of the oldest neighborhoods in Paris. Le Marais ("the marsh") is a trendy district in Paris now celebrated for its nightlife. In 1969, André Malraux made the Marais the first protected sector, with the area being home to many museums, art galleries and historic sites. The Picasso Museum is located here.

4th Arrondissement

This lively neighborhood with a strong alternative lifestyle scene as well as lots of trendy bars, shops, and restaurants. The rue des Rosiers is a centerpiece of Jewish lifestyle in Paris and the Ile St. Louis and the Ile de la Cité are the oldest parts of Paris. The two islands of Paris, l'Ile de la Cité (where Notre-Dame is located) and l'Ile St-Louis were the center of Paris in the Middle Ages.

Here you will find the lovely Square Place des Vosges, built by Henry IV, where its most famous resident, Victor Hugo wrote Les Misérables. The main focus for contemporary art in France "Centre Pompidou" is also in this part of town.

5th Arrondissement

The 5th District together with the 6th district as known as the famous Latin Quarter. The neighborhood has the feel of a small village. Visit the Jardin des Plantes and its zoo and the amphitheatre of Lutetia, a vestige of Roman times. The Museum of the Middle Ages is in the Square de Cluny, and the riverside walkways (quais) host hundreds of second-hand books sellers. In 1968, the area was the centre of the French student revolt, known as "May 68". The district has kept its original lively and trendy atmosphere and is renowned for its medieval streets, colorful markets, restaurants, cafés and nightlife.

6th Arrondissement

Saint-Germain-des-Prés is a charming district on the South bank of the river Seine. In the 19th century, the district became the meeting place of artists (Delacroix, Ingres, Manet) and writers (Racine, Balzac, Georges Sand). The Rues de Seine, Dauphine and Mazarine, and the area between Boulevard St-Germain and the Seine provide perfect examples of Parisian charm: you can find shops and cafés, busy pubs and jazz clubs. Saint-Germain-des-Prés is the birthplace of the existentialism intellectual movement. Also here is the Observatoire de Paris.

7th Arrondissement

The Eiffel Tower is located here. This arrondissement is generally called "the ministries district", it also hosts some of Paris' most famous monuments: the Invalides (Napoleon's Tomb), the Champ de Mars and L'Ecole Militaire. Between Quai Voltaire and Rue de l'Université, hundreds of antique dealers will welcome you in Carré Rive Gauche. The Musée d'Orsay, famous home of the Impressionists, is located along the quai in the renovated train station Gare d'Orsay (1848).

8th Arrondissement

The centerpiece of this district is the Avenue des Champs-Élysées, which starts at the Arc de Triomphe and ends on the Place de la Concorde, where Louis XVI lost his head during the Revolution (1793). It is a two kilometre stretch of road lined with trees, shopping, restaurants, and movie theatres. Our very favorite museum in Paris is the Musée Jacquart-André located at 158 Boulevard Haussmann and has one of the best museum restaurants in the world.

9th Arrondissement

The famous Opéra Garnier is located here. Most of all, this district is renowned for its department stores on Boulevard Haussmann: Printemps and the Galeries Lafayette. In the north Pigalle the illuminated red windmill of the Moulin Rouge, one of the first cabarets opened in Paris in 1889.

10th Arrondissement

The two great train stations in Paris are here, the Gare de l'Est and the Gare du Nord, where you can catch the Eurostar train direct London. Along the Canal St-Martin are the Quai de Valmy and Jemmapes and a stroll here makes one of the most picturesque walks in Paris. The canal was opened in 1825 after Napoleon had ordered the artificial waterway dug to supply Paris with water, by the 1960s, traffic had dwindled to a trickle and the canal narrowly escaped being filled in and paved over for a highway. Today, the canal is a popular destination for Parisians and tourists who watch the barges navigate the series of locks and road bridges.

11th Arrondissement

Place de la Bastille and the New Opera House are located here. Formerly the haunt of furniture craftsmen, the Bastille district now plays host to an entirely different scene: that of Paris' young and trendy in-crowd. Rue du Faubourg-St-Antoine has seen many a restaurant and nightclub spring up and flourish. This district also has some of the finest Parisian nightspots: Rue Oberkampf, Rue de la Roquette and Rue de Lappe are popular spots.

12th Arrondissement

Paris' Marina is here, spreading from the River Seine to the Place de la Bastille and its fabulous Opera Theatre. The Palais Omnisport Paris-Bercy hosts many spectacular events including concerts and sporting events. East of the city is the Bois de Vincennes, a large park with a lake.

13th Arrondissement

The eastern part of this district is often called "Chinatown": it houses an incredible quantity of Chinese and Asian restaurants and shops, and even massive Oriental super stores, the Bibliotheque Francois Mitterand. is by the river, on the Quai de la Gare. In the western part, stroll in the charming village of La Butte-aux-Cailles, and on Place d'Italie, where you will find Europe's largest cinema screen. This is the area where the famous Gobelins tapestries which hang in Versailles were made.

14th Arrondissement

Known as the Montparnasse which covers 14th district, a part of the 15th and the southern end of the 6th districts. The district became famous after World War I when the artistic and intellectual centre of Paris moved from Montmartre to Montparnasse. Montparnasse attracted famous people such as Picasso, Miro, Cocteau, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Ernest Hemingway and Jean-Paul Sartre. The Montparnasse area is renowned for its literary cafés such as La Closerie des Lilas, La Coupole and La Rotonde. Montparnasse is also an important business district. From the top of the Tour Montparnasse, visitors can enjoy a breathtaking view of Paris. The Galerie Gaité Montparnasse is one of the city's popular shopping centres. Also here is the parc Montsouris which is a lovely park. Visitors come to enjoy the unique atmosphere of the brasseries along Boulevard Montparnasse, "le Select", "le Dome", "la Coupole". Tour Montparnasse (Montparnasse Tower) is a skyscraper at 33, avenue du Maine, in the Montparnasse area of Paris, France, the only skyscraper office building in Paris proper. Built on top of the Paris Metro station "Montparnasse-Bienvenue", the 58 floors of the tower are mainly occupied by offices, while two floors are open to the public for viewing the city; the 56th floor with a restaurant, and the terrace on the top floor. On a clear day, the view covers a radius of 40 kilometers

15th Arrondissement

This large primarily residential neighborhood ranges from very upscale in the area bordering the 7th district and the Seine. By the river you can find the very beautiful Citroen gardens (parc André Citroen), named after the car manufacturer who had his first factory here. North but still facing the Seine are Paris' skyscrapers, dominating the Statue of Liberty, a smaller version of the one given to the US by France.

16th Arrondissement

The Trocadéro offers a remarkable view of the city as well as housing two museums (Marine Museum and Museum of Mankind). Avenue Foch is impressive, as is the Parc des Princes (Paris Stadium).

17th Arrondissement

This diverse district is made up of many small neighborhoods. Market streets and local crafts are found on every corner. It borders the Arc de Triomphe and is easily accessible to the Champs Elysees.

18th Arrondissement

Perched on a hill north of the city centre, the Montmartre area is like a village within Paris. Its narrow and winding streets, cafés and lovely squares give the district a unique atmosphere. The butte (hill) became famous at the end of the 19th century when Montmartre became the centre of the artistic and intellectual life in Paris until World War I. Famous writers and artists were attracted by Montmartre's Bohemian lifestyle including Apollinaire, Picasso, Van Gogh and Toulouse-Lautrec. Montmartre is also the birthplace of the Cubism movement. Today, Montmartre is still a meeting point for artists, the hill is dominated by the well-known Sacré-Coeur, a Byzantine-style basilica. Its construction began at the end of the 19th-century and was completed in 1914. Also famous is the Pigalle area at the base of the stairs (Boulevards de Clichy and de Rochechouart) for its nightlife: bars and clubs.

19th Arrondissement

The Cité des Sciences et de l'Industrie (City of Science and Industry) was designed as Paris' window onto the world of science; an objective that has been reached mainly courtesy of the Géode, a hemispherical cinema. The Buttes Chaumont is the ideal place for a relaxing walk, which you can finish off with the second part of Canal St-Martin (which start in the 10th arrondissement)

20th Arrondissement

La Villette, Belleville and the Père-Lachaise cemetery. You are off to discover a popular, hip and cosmopolitan Paris. This melting pot of a neighborhood, where many languages are spoken, is in some ways Paris' window on the world. These low-rise buildings standing back-to-back, these paving stones and these little courtyards are definitely Paris. The most well-known cemetery in Paris, the Cimetière du Père-Lachaise is the final resting place of many famous artists, and is one of the most visited sites in the city.

The Hilton Paris Charles de Gaulle Airport is a short 5 minute shuttle ride from the airport. Catch the shuttle near Gate 2A (Air France gates) and call them for a pickup. Return is on demand and only takes five minutes.

The restaurant is excellent. If the bar is still open, try the old fashioned hamburgers. Of course, French fries are great anywhere in France.

Hotel Excelsior and its garden is located in the full center of the town, 600 meters from the Promenade des Anglais (the main strip), and 200 meters from the train station, within a tree lined residential quarter. Built in the style of the "Beautiful Era", it was renovated conserving the original design. A room "Louis XVI" is a private room holding 20 people where you can organize seminars or expositions. We speak French, English, German, Italian, and Spanish.
